

KNOX LAW'S INNOVATIVE APPROACH TO ELDER LAW INCLUDES OFFERING CLIENTS COMPREHENSIVE SUPPORT SERVICES

For Board Certified Elder Law Attorney Caroline Knox and her team at Knox Law in Hendersonville, the practice of elder law involves a holistic approach that often encompasses assisting clients with much more than just finalizing legal documents.

Knox Law is unique in Western North Carolina and throughout the state for having a multifaceted approach to helping elder clients and their families with legal advice as well as a variety of support services.

Caroline Knox is one of only two attorneys in the region – and one of only 16 in the state – who has received the Board Certified Elder Law designation by The National Elder Law Foundation.

With more than 18 years of experience practicing law, she specializes in counseling clients about such legal matters as long-term care planning, asset preservation, Medicaid, estate planning, estate and trust administration, special needs trusts and guardianships.

MORE THAN JUST LEGAL HELP

When she founded Knox Law in early 2018, Caroline set out to help clients with not only their legal matters, but also with issues relating to their well-being and daily lives.

Based on her past work with older clients, she saw a great need for a comprehensive approach to assisting aging adults, especially those with no family members nearby.

With a team that includes a social worker, geriatric case manager nurse and an account specialist, Knox Law offers support services ancillary to legal services. Services include in-home care referrals and staffing, placement at care facilities, account management, insurance filing, bill paying and geriatric case management.

SUPPORTIVE SERVICES BUILT ON RELATIONSHIPS

At the request of clients or of the court, Caroline serves as guardian or power of attorney. In this capacity, Knox Law provides a range of services that can include: arranging medical appointments, managing health care and household services, paying bills, setting up an emergency contact network, making funeral arrangements and organizing an estate sale.

Caroline Knox is a North Carolina attorney who has earned the designation of Board Certified Elder Law Attorney (CELA) by The National Elder Law Foundation. She was recently named the Best Lawyers® 2019 Elder Law "Lawyer of the Year" in Asheville.

"We've built a strong relationship with all kinds of people who work with older folks and through these connections we're able to provide a number of services to our clients," she said. "Everyone here at Knox Law cares, and there's a feeling of family that carries into the work we do for our clients."

KNOX LAW

Estate Planning • Elder Law • Guardianships • Medicaid

Knox Law
16 Towne Place Drive, Suite 100 in Hendersonville
(828) 513-1600
cknoxelderlaw.com

Knox Law also serves clients in Asheville and Waynesville by appointment only at the Haywood County Senior Resource Center at 81 Elmwood Way in Waynesville and at the Regus Office Biltmore Park, Building 2B, 28 Schenck Parkway, Suite 200 in Asheville. Caroline also makes house calls.